To Prospective Clients of Littlest Angels Learning Center:

It is with pleasure that I am sharing my own personal experience about Littlest Angels. I have been involved with LA, off and on, for the past 14 years. There are 8.5 years between our youngest two daughters. We have an 11 year-old and a three year-old both of which were raised while attending Littlest Angels.

I'll begin with our 11 year-old. She started at a different establishment. One that has since closed it's doors. Based on my experience, I suspect it closed because of weak management and a high-turnover rate among the staff. I never knew who I was going to meet when I dropped her off and picked her up. Needless to say, that was distressing. Then came the call from Mrs. Carrie in which we found out there was an opening in what I will forever call, "The Baby House." Our darling 11 year-old was six-months old at the time. She spent a much happier life at Littlest Angels all the way through kindergarten. In fact, she was transported to kindergarten by LA.

Much later in our lives, came our youngest daughter who is now 3 years-old. While there are child care centers literally just a hop, skip, and jump from where I work (and the same price), it never occurred to me to go anywhere other than Littlest Angels. I chose to be a working mother. So, it only made sense to me to pursue a child care center that understood as well as respected this fact. Our adorable, rotten at times stinker, has become a very happy toddler at Littlest Angels. With their help I have been allowed to pursue my passion which just happens to be education. So, in a way, we all have something very important in common: CHILDREN.

In closing, there is one more thing that I would like to share. No matter who your child's primary caregiver is at Littlest Angels, the other caregivers will be able to greet them by their name. This makes it easier for the kids when transitioning to new classrooms. When you add this to the fact that you see the same caregivers year after year, you know that you r children are in a very loving and nurturing environment. Good luck!

Sincerely,

Belinda Taylor
